Living in a Pluralistic World

People are all fundamentally the same. Yet some women in Iraq believe that allowing men up to four wives is better than the American limitation of just one. Very conservative Muslims know that God requires them to brush their teeth with a certain kind of fibrous stick. Hmong immigrants may disregard doctors' instructions about dosages of drugs, even when lives are in danger. Men who pick the fruit and vegetables you eat leave their families and sometimes comfortable homes to risk their lives crossing the US border, live in appalling conditions, and do dangerous, low-paying work. You probably couldn't convince any of these people to change their minds, and they would consider you ignorant for thinking they should. How can sane, smart people think and act so differently? How can we deal with people so determined to be different from us?

Objectives: This course aims to help you learn:
- ways to understand and deal with seemingly incomprehensible behavior and beliefs of people from other cultures
- how much of what you "know" about people and life is actually specific to your culture, and not necessarily applicable when you deal with people from other cultures
- how to have more respect and tolerance for people of other cultures
- some ways that global economics and politics force us to deal with other cultures
- specifics about some cultures that are important to us right now: Muslims in Iraq and Afghanistan, and Latino farmworkers and immigrants
- specifics about some issues involving other cultures that are important right now: health care, and immigration from Latin America
- new ways to think about what is, and what should be, going on in the modern world, from commentary on CNN to your next opportunity to vote.

GE requirement: This course satisfies the upper division Integrated Person (E) General Education requirement.

Reading: This class requires around 50 pages of reading per class session. But unlike dense, dry textbook readings, this material is mostly real books, plus a few short articles and extracts. The syllabus indicates what you should read before each class. The books are all affordable paperbacks. All are available from North Light Books & Cafe, 550 E. Cotati Ave., next to Oliver’s Market in the shopping complex at East Cotati (707 792-4300). The books are:
- Plus some additional online readings available through the class website.

Lecture notes: Brief lecture notes and class Powerpoint graphics will be posted on the web page. The notes and Powerpoint files are useful for review, but they are no substitute for attending class and doing the reading.

Class web page: You are responsible for checking the class web page regularly. Not only the readings and lecture notes, but also announcements, assignment information, deadlines, and other information will be posted there. The web page will change and grow over the semester. You can click to it from SSU’s online list of class web pages, or go to:

http://bruceowen.com/pluralistic/340-07s.htm

Due to copyright restrictions, you will need a class user ID and password to access the readings on the class website. These are NOT the same ID and password that you use for other SSU functions. The ID and password will be announced in class. If you can’t recall them, email me.

Assignments and their weights in grading:

20% Daily reading quiz (about 1% each). Three multiple-choice questions about the day's reading. No make-ups.

5% How cultural difference made a difference one-pager. A one-page essay explaining how a difference in cultures between people affected an interaction in Guests of the Sheik.

5% A cultural theme one-pager. A one-page essay explaining a cultural theme and how it shows up in three different places in Guests of the Sheik.

5% Adaptation, meaning, and system one-pager. A one-page essay explaining a cultural feature as an adaptation, another feature in terms of meaning, and another in terms of culture as a system, drawing the three examples from West of Kabul, East of New York and/or The Spirit Catches You And You Fall Down.

20% Bus ethnography. You take four trips on a Santa Rosa city bus and spend some time at the transportation mall, unaccompanied by anyone you know. You observe people waiting for and riding the buses. You write a roughly five page discussion of how people form or seem to belong to different cultural groups, how they interact, and your own responses to the experience, using anthropological concepts from the course. More details will be posted on the class web page.

20% Midterm exam. Essay questions, largely based on readings and class discussions, including comparisons and/or applications to other situations.

25% Final exam. Cumulative, comparative, and synthetic, covering the whole semester. Essay questions focusing on readings and concepts from class discussions, including comparisons and/or applications to other situations.
Submitting the papers: You must submit your work BOTH on paper AND as a computer file attached to an email message to me. I will return the paper copy with comments and a grade written on it. The paper copy is due in class on the day indicated on the syllabus. The computer file OF THE IDENTICAL PAPER is due by midnight of that day. I must have BOTH versions to give you credit. Please name files in this format, for each assignment:

340-07s-difference-SmithJane.doc
340-07s-theme-SmithJane.doc
340-07s-adaptation-SmithJane.doc
340-07s-bus-SmithJane.doc

Your word processor will add the 3-letter file extension, like doc, wps, cwk, or rtf. Any of those is fine. If you send me a draft to comment on, use the same format but add "-draft". For example, 340-07s-bus-SimpsonBart-draft.doc

Deadline policy: If circumstances prevent you from successfully submitting the paper or computer version, I will consider the assignment to be on time if either one of the two copies reaches me by the deadline. I must eventually receive both in order to give you credit, though. I will accept assignments no more than one week late with a 15% grading penalty.

Drafts: I encourage you to submit drafts of the assignments so that I can comment on them and help guide you in a good direction for the final version. Email is fastest, but I will also look at paper drafts.

Email: I usually reply to emails within 24 hours. If you do not hear from me within 48 hours, assume that I did not get your message and try again.

Invitation: If you want help, or just to talk about anthropology, assignments, preparing for tests, archaeology, or anything else, please drop by during my office hours, arrange to see me at some other time, or contact me by email.

Disability accommodations: To request academic accommodations due to a disability, please contact the disabled student services (DSS) office in Salazar 1049, or call 664-2677. If you have a letter from DSS indicating that you require academic accommodations, please bring it to me so we can discuss arrangements for this class.

Plagiarism: Plagiarism is the use of someone else’s words, information, or ideas without giving that person credit. This includes cutting and pasting from websites or other public sources, even brief phrases. Always indicate all your sources. Plagiarism results in a reduced or zero grade for that assignment. Severe or repeated plagiarism results in an F for the course. University policy requires me to report plagiarism. The University checks for repeat offenders, and may impose sanctions up to expulsion. For details, including how to use material without plagiarizing, please see the class website.

University policies: There are important University policies that you should be aware of, such as the add/drop policy; cheating and plagiarism policy, grade appeal procedures, accommodations for students with disabilities and the diversity vision statement. You can see them at:

Living in a Pluralistic World
Class and Reading Schedule, Spring 2007

- Readings for some class sessions will be posted on the class website:
  http://bruceowen.com/pluralistic/340-07s.htm

- Read the assignments before each class, so you are ready for the daily reading quiz and can participate in class discussions. In some class sessions, we will do things other than discuss the reading assigned for that day -- but keep up with the posted readings. I will assume that you have read the assignment scheduled for each class. Readings may be covered in tests whether or not we discuss them in class.

- The class website will show any changes to the reading schedule, assignments, deadlines, exam dates, and so on. The information posted on the website takes precedence over the syllabus below, so check the website regularly!
